SIVAL 2027

The rendezvous for the specialist plant production sector

A special edition, reflecting on past achievements and the sector's future

From the 12th to 14th January 2027, the 40th edition of the SIVAL will be taking place at the Parc des Expositions in Angers. Four decades of serving the specialist plant production sector, celebrated with a wide range of different highlights and a show that will be featuring new developments, both with its layout and its programme.

In a demanding economic and climatic context, the show will be aiming to unite those involved more than ever, by highlighting innovations and opening up future perspectives, both for businesses and producers. This is why 730 exhibitors and 24 000 professionals from all of the different branches of specialist plant production will be present over three days at the SIVAL in order to have discussions and make progress with their projects, and to meet those that are creating the sector's future.

40 YEARS OF INNOVATION

Lets look back at the progress made in order to have a better vision of the sector's future

Since 1987, the SIVAL has been supporting mutations in the different sectors of tree production, market gardening, wine, horticultural, nurseries as well as seeds and plants and has made itself an unmissable event that encourages meetings, stimulates synergies and provides food for thought about major agricultural changes.

There will be three highlights during the SIVAL as a reminder of what the show has done over the past 40 years

- In partnership with VEGEPOLYS VALLEY, the SIVAL will have an exhibition of images and videos covering the last 40 years of innovation and development. Particularly those that have had an impact on the sectors, from varieties that have become emblematic, to bestselling equipment. A voyage through the past to better appreciate the progress made.
- A big social evening that will unite exhibitors and partners on Wednesday 13 January.
- A dedicated period at the show's official opening.

A NEW LAYOUT

to improve support for the different sectors

To celebrate its 40th anniversary the show will have a new pre-equipped platform, that will provide the opportunity to develop supplementary exhibition space. This investment by Angers Loire Métropole will enable the SIVAL to open a new chapter in its history and its development with a rethought layout that will enable :

• In the short and medium term the reorganisation of its layout, with an increase in its offer : fluidifying circulation for visitors, coherent grouping of offerings by key sectors such as crops grown under cover and under glass, irrigation (which until now has been spread over 3 different halls), with an increase in the shows surface area to 37 500 m² from 35 500 m² in 2026.

• In the longer term maintaining the level of service provided for professionals and contributing to its development.

Baptised Le Pavillon, This new structure will also be home to La Serre and it's forums therefore creating a centre that combines equipment, technical solutions and presentations by experts.

Finally this new organisation is part of a wider ambition : to reaffirm the leadership of the SIVAL in the fruit, vegetable and horticultural sectors, whilst supporting the development of its wine production offering.

A PROGRAM
that is at the level of the challenges facing the different sectors

Faithful to its DNA, the SIVAL will be offering content that is based on innovation and the major challenges facing the different sectors in specialist plant production.

The aim of the programme is to provide more resources, both literally and figuratively : water will have a prominent position with conferences, forums and a specific tour around the show, in addition to the exhibitors offerings featuring irrigation that are based in Le Pavillon. Solutions can be seen, compared and questioned in situ.

Several important events

• The Concours SIVAL Innovation : pearhead for innovation in the sector, will once again be highlighting the innovations that aid mutation and evolution in the different sectors.
It aims to highlight the capacity of businesses to project themselves, innovate and evolve in order to meet today's, and the futures challenges.

KEY DATES FOR THE CONCOURS SIVAL INNOVATION
• Pre-jury : friday 20 november
• Final jury : tuesday 15 december

7 CATEGORIES
• Varietal innovation
• Machinery and automation
• Plant health and growing media
• Production supplies and equipment
• Marketing solutions
• Digital tools and data processing
• Démarche collective et services

• Agreen Défi : launched in its new format in 2026, The SIVAL Hackathon, organised in partnership with the Chambre d'Agriculture, will continue its exploration of the advantages for the different sectors provided by artificial intelligence. Open to exhibitors and non-exhibitors (with certain conditions), this competition aims to encourage the emergence of operational solutions for problems put forward by members of the sector.

• The SIVAL will also be renewing it's area dedicated to farm diversification, « Diversification by SIVAL », An event that aims to explore the complementary means that are available to producers : the emergence of new sectors, energy production, development of byproducts… A wide range of avenues for strengthening the resilience and economic viability of farms.

that puts people at the centre of the sectors

Because the future of the specialist plant production sector doesn't depend uniquely on innovation, the SIVAL will have a major area dedicated to the attractiveness of the different sectors.

• A roundtable discussion dedicated to resumption–transmission of farms, proposed by the APECITA in the Emploi & Métier area.

This opportunity for discussions will complete the careers and employment feature with amongst others the APECITA PRO Meetings, the student career paths, an exhibition illustrating inspirational career paths of agricultural workers…

• The SIVAL, as part of its desire to highlight the agricultural cooperative model and the different challenges, will be welcoming FELCOOP, who will be presenting a roundtable discussion on « The future of cooperatives is being constructed now : attract, install, transmit », with its underlying theme being based on the subjects of transmission and attractiveness of different careers.

A SHOW WITH AN INTERNATIONAL FOCUS

International development is a key theme for the SIVAL. For this latest addition the show will continue its programme that welcomes top international buyers, with the aim of facilitating meetings between French businesses and targeted buyers. it will be amplified by the VIBE from VEGEPOLYS VALLEY, which has become another important event, whose aim is to contribute to commercial discussions, creating new synergies and promoting the know-how of the different businesses to an international audience.■
